Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 127 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This is a novel or creative non-fiction, whichever you prefer, about war, the Second World War. It is based on facts and eye-witness accounts. The vast majority of the characters existed and did do what the novel details. If an exact date is given, the event is factual. All of the peripheral characters are fictional as is the vast majority of the dialogue. The main exceptions being many of Winston Churchill's speeches, anecdotes and comments, plus Chapter 42 which is based on the Hansard transcription of the Parliamentary debate. The cover photo shows the medal awarded to Alina Margareta Kibilski, nee Andrzejewska, in August 2014. It was awarded at a small ceremony at the Polish Embassy in London, and recognises her suffering in the camps of Siberia from 1940 to 1942. The other side of the family, who lived throughout the war in Poland, experienced equally harrowing times. I was born in England, the son of an Irish immigrant, and was interested to hear the stories of Polish immigrants, who arrived in England like my father, but on a far more complicated journey. I had missed the war by just a few years, but with my friends I played in the bombed out buildings, which didn't get replaced until the 1960s. We were fascinated by the conflict that we had only just missed. With my friends I collected a series of war comics from a second-hand shop, until we had them almost right up to date. By then we were twelve years old and decided to grow up. However the fascination has never left me. The book deals in particular with the contrasting experiences of...
