Brand New Book. Excerpt from Five Little Strangers: And How They Came to Live in America He went far into the woods. There was not a single white person, or a black person, or a yellow person, or a brown person. Only the red people lived here. America was their home. It was a wonderful home Far in the west lay the Pacific Ocean. Its waves foamed and roared along the cliffs. Back from the shore there were hills covered with yellow poppies and other wild flowers. Then came mountains with snowy peaks, and rivers dashing over rocks. Mountain lions and bears hid in caves. Mountain sheep nibbled the grass in upland meadows. After the mountains there were gray deserts without a tree or a stream of water. Only clumps of gray sagebrush grew here and there on the gray earth. Then came the prairies with miles and miles and miles of green grass growing in the sunshine. Little brown prairie dogs sat up on their hind legs beside their...
