A complementary pair of taking filters will, for example, allow the orange and red to pass through one of the pair and record those values on the film in the final form of developed (reduced) silver, while the green and blue light reflected from the objects being photographed will pass through the green-blue filter. This explanation, however, is only partially true, as the conditions only hold good at certain intensities of light. Either of the filters in the pair will record white light and will pass red-green and blue light if of sufficient intensity. It is this necessity of recording the whites and greys and still preserving the separation or isolation of colors that is responsible for the Raleigh-Kelley Patent U. S. A., No. 1,217,425 of 1917. By this means, to each exposure through the color filter is added on the same image area a neutral exposure which has very much the same effect as the addition of the grey print in quadricolor printing, and while this about doubles the exposure, it is also found to wonderfully enrich the picture with pastel shades such as are found in nature. It helps to furnish detail and round out the picture. Printing All color record negatives are in sets of from two upwards. Therefore, the simplest form must use two records, separated in some manner. Aside from the d method described under Positives some suitable means must be found for bringing...
